In hundreds of locations around the globe, Hillel professionals offer students a world of possibilities: a variety of opportunities to grow as individuals, as leaders, and as members of the Jewish community. In this interconnected world, students from South America participate in Hillel leadership training programs in the United States; Israeli students lead Passover Seders in Ukraine; North American students rebuild homes in Uruguay; thousands of Hillel students visit Israel every year... the choices are endless.

Today, 80 years after its creation, Hillel is an international community devoted to learning, personal growth, pluralism, Israel, Jewish celebration and the perpetuation of the Jewish people. Student by student, community by community, country by country, Hillel is forging a strong Jewish future.

In 2004, the Hillel world continued to expand. Hillel Foundations were created in Santiago, Chile, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, and Beer Sheva, Israel. Beautiful state-of-the-art facilities were constructed in nine communities. This year, Hillel brought more students to Israel than ever before. And students graduated from colleges and universities imbued with their Hillel experiences to take their place as community leaders.

We are proud of the contributions that Hillel is making to the lives of Jewish college students and to the communities in which they live. But there is so much more that we can do. We thank the many individuals who have made this work possible, and invite others to join us in shaping the world of possibilities that lies ahead.
PNINA GADAY

At age three and a half, Pnina Gaday nearly lost her life in Operation Moses, the arduous 1984 exodus of Ethiopian Jews across the wilderness of Ethiopia and Sudan. When the family’s supplies were nearly exhausted, Pnina’s mother was forced to plead for food from a local hospital. With the hospital’s help, the family continued on its journey and fulfilled its dream of a new life in Israel.

Faith, hope and courage are still central to Pnina. Today, at age 22, she is a Hillel leader at The Hebrew University of Jerusalem, creating programs that bring communities together and bring Jewish culture to life.

“It’s not enough to observe Shabbat and kashrut,” she says. “I want to stand up and shout that I am proud to be Jewish. Hillel gives me that chance.”

Hillel has offered her a welcoming environment and has empowered her to create meaningful programs. Her first success was an evening of Ethiopian culture that drew 250 participants from the campus and the community. She has gone on to create events that combine karaoke and Jewish texts about love. She has traveled to the former Soviet Union to help lead Passover Seders, and she is involved in an international cooperative program to fund innovative campus initiatives.

“I like to feel part of a community. Hillel gives me that feeling and allows me to say ‘Wow, I can do something that’s important.’”
Fabio Messer is a pioneer. When he learned that Hillel was planning to open a facility for young people in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, he rose to the challenge. Though Rio is home to the second-largest Jewish community in the country, with several synagogues and Jewish primary schools, resources for young adults were scarce. Fabio helped Hillel find a location, raise money and develop a budget. The building opened in 2003.

“There are not many other organizations in Rio that focus on the needs of Jewish university students,” Fabio explains. “Hillel filled that gap.”

Fabio, who is completing his MBA in finance at IBMEC Business School, shares his expertise with his peers as volunteer coordinator for Hillel’s Business Club. In addition to organizing programs with business professionals, he is developing a career center to help students find jobs and internships. He has also worked with the elderly and consulted with a Jewish social service agency through the Weinberg Tzedek Hillel program, an international initiative promoting social justice and public service.

“It is wonderful that Hillel tries to reach Jewish students in many different ways,” Fabio says.
Serving as a pro-Israel activist on the campus of the University of California, Los Angeles is often challenging. But Hillel leader Viki Rapoport has overcome challenges before. Born in Moscow, she immigrated to Israel at age seven and to the United States at 13. She not only surmounted cultural barriers twice, she also gained a deep love for the Jewish state.

As co-president of Bruins for Israel for two years, she worked to dispel myths about the Arab-Israeli conflict and to educate a community that is often critical of Israel.

“UCLA IS A VERY LIBERAL CAMPUS, AND THERE’S A TENDENCY TO SUPPORT THE UNDERDOG. ISRAEL HAS BEEN WRONGLY PORTRAYED AS THE OPPRESSOR. I THINK AN ANTI-ISRAEL ATTITUDE STEMS FROM THAT,” VIKI SAYS.

Viki’s connection to Hillel began in high school when she accompanied her older sister to Shabbat services at UCLA Hillel. Once enrolled, she quickly became involved with AIPAC and Bruins for Israel, bringing speakers to campus, circulating petitions in support of Israel and planning events like Yom Ha’Atzma’ut (Israel Independence) week. Her leadership was recognized this year when she was selected to serve as a Grinspoon Israel Advocacy Intern, one of 45 students on U.S. campuses who create innovative pro-Israel programs.

“When I look back at my college years, I know Hillel will be one of my best experiences,” Viki says. “It made me love Judaism even more.”
When Joel Bennett first came to Hillel at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, he realized that the arts were an effective way to share his love for Jewish identity with fellow students.

“THIS IS EXACTLY THE KIND OF PROGRAMMING THAT PEOPLE ARE GOING TO REMEMBER WHEN THEY THINK BACK ON COLLEGE – A LECTURE THAT SPOKE TO THEM IN A CERTAIN WAY, A PLAY THAT SHOWED THEM THE LIGHTER SIDE OF AN ISSUE, OR A COFFEEHOUSE THAT SHOWCASED THEIR TALENTS,” JOEL SAYS.

Joel set out to organize a strong, compelling cultural arts program for Hillel. He consolidated Hillel’s artistic offerings into the Jewish Cultural Collective and secured an unprecedented $100,000 grant from the student government. The Collective now employs 12 students to steer the programs, which include speakers, a Hillel student magazine, Israeli and Jewish film festivals, Jewish-themed plays, musical performances and art shows.

A senior majoring in history and political science, Joel hopes to continue learning and teaching through a career in education.

“JUDAISM HAS REALLY GROWN TO BE A PART OF ME,” HE SAYS. “HILLEL HAS BEEN A BIG PART OF DEVELOPING THAT FEELING OF COMMUNITY.”
Growing up in Tashkent, Uzbekistan, the only thing Biana Shilshtut knew about her Jewish identity was the Russian word for “Jew” stamped on her identity card. When she began to attend college, the world of Jewish life opened before her through her involvement in Hillel.

“JUDAISM IS A BIG PART OF MY SOUL – IT’S INSIDE OF ME,” BIANA SAYS. “I NEED TO BE PART OF A JEWISH COMMUNITY.”

Biana began to take a leadership role in Hillel activities. Among other projects, she was responsible for sending teams of Jewish students across the former Soviet Union to lead Passover Seders. Upon graduation, she undertook a new adventure when she enrolled in a master’s degree program — at North Dakota State University in Fargo.

When she didn’t find a Jewish community on campus, Biana organized the first Rosh Hashana meal at the school. The event attracted Jewish students who had never before declared their Jewishness in public.

Thanks to Biana, there is now a Hillel at North Dakota State. It offers Shabbat dinners, Havdalah programs, holiday events and Seders.

“We DON’T DO MUCH,” SHE SAYS MODESTLY, “JUST CELEBRATE SHABBAT AND THE HOLIDAYS. BUT WHAT WE DO IS REALLY MEANINGFUL.”
Coming to Vermont’s Middlebury College from Miami, Mike Vilarello did not have a group of hometown friends on campus to help ease the transition to college life. Looking to make new friends, Mike, who has both Jewish and Cuban heritage, checked out Hillel and a Latin American student organization and immediately found his place at Hillel.

“I FELT SO WELCOME AT HILLEL FROM THE BEGINNING, AND AS I BECAME MORE INVOLVED I WAS MOTIVATED TO TAKE ON LEADERSHIP ROLES,” SAYS MIKE, WHO WAS ELECTED HILLEL PRESIDENT THIS YEAR.

As Mike’s leadership skills grew, so did Middlebury College Hillel, part of the Soref Initiative for Emerging Campuses. He planned themed Shabbat programs that helped boost regular attendance at Friday night services to 50 students. He increased social justice programming to attract new students and organized an alternative spring break service project to Honduras. For his outstanding leadership Mike was appointed to the Board of Directors of Hillel: The Foundation for Jewish Campus Life.

An economics and political science major, Mike also serves as a senator on Middlebury’s College student government and belongs to Kappa Delta Rho, a co-ed social house. He credits Hillel for helping him develop into a campus leader.

“I’LL BE ABLE TO USE THESE SKILLS FOR THE REST OF MY LIFE,” HE SAYS.

VALUED PARTNERS

SUPPORT. The Hillel enterprise is indebted to the lay leaders and philanthropists whose resources, expertise, and passion strengthen Hillel’s impact around the world. These invaluable partnerships have made it possible for Hillel to address anti-Israel and anti-Semitic activity on campus, as well as to offer support, comfort, and guidance to a record number of students.

Hillel’s benefactors understand the importance of providing Jewish college students with positive, celebratory forms of Jewish expression. Holiday celebrations, Israel trips, cultural events, community service experiences, educational programs, and leadership development conferences are engaging and empowering a new generation of Jewish leaders.

Under Edith Everett’s stewardship as Development Chair, participation in Hillel’s Renaissance Society grew dramatically and fundraising efforts expanded worldwide. Nine beautiful new Hillel buildings opened in the past year. These vibrant centers of Jewish campus life provide homes to thousands of students at Brooklyn College, Brown University, Hillel Chile, Johns Hopkins University, Hillel Rio de Janeiro, Syracuse University, University of Pennsylvania, University of Toronto, and University of Washington. Hillel extends its profound appreciation to all the donors and stakeholders whose hard work brought the dream of new homes on these campuses to fruition.

Hillel is grateful for the ongoing support of the United Jewish Communities, the 155 Jewish Federations across North America, a significant number of whom also provide national and international support in addition to their local programs. Hillel is proud to be a beneficiary of federation campaigns and encourages university students, lay leaders and campus professionals to support the global humanitarian efforts of the Jewish people.

Finally, this year more than 600 Hillel friends and supporters attended Hillel’s Gala in March to celebrate the exemplary leadership of Edith and her beloved husband, Henry, of blessed memory. The Jewish people will reap the benefits of the Everetts’ dedication to Hillel and to Jewish college students for years and years to come.

Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton (D-N.Y.) joins Henry z”l and Edith Everett and their family at the March 2004 tribute event.
